

DEXTOOL Terms and Conditions of USE

Thanks for choosing DEXTOOL! These terms and Conditions of USE ("TCU") cover your use of DEXTOOL.

When you use DEXTOOL, you provide your files, texts and so on to the DEXTOOL system. All of that is yours. We do not want to get rights or your permissions to access these files, texts and so on. However, in order to provide you with the service you have chosen, we have to store your files in our system, back it up and maintain accordingly.

Accepting these TCU you give us permission to host your files and texts, back them up, allow us to share your files to other registered users when you decide so.

Our service allows you to share your files with other registered users called Partners. Please think carefully about what you share, to whom you and what share. This is clearly your decision and you confirm that you are fully competent to do so.

You're responsible for your files, texts and so on. Please don't copy, upload, download or share content unless you have the right to do so. We forbid uploading and sharing files such as music and video files (with exception of own production for the following types .mov, .mp4, m4v, mkv, avi, mpeg) or files that fall under protection by others' intellectual property rights. There is a 20MB restriction on the files size as DEXTOOL is primarily supposed to be used for storing rather documents than music and video files.

We do not review your files, texts and so on. However, on an accidental basis we search for music and video files, which are subject for controlled removal by registered users who are advised to do so. We are not responsible for the content of the files, texts and so on stored in DEXTOOL.
